MANY QUALIFIED FOR FINAL TEST

Expert Spellers from the Borough and Township Schools Just as Numerous as ever and Lively Match is Expected.

Adams County boys and girls have lost none of their skill in spelling during the past year if the reports of the preliminary contests held last Saturday, and now being received at the office of County Superintendent Roth, are to be taken as any indication. These contests were conducted in order to select the pupils who would be eligible to participate in the county match in the Court House on Saturday, April first.

Not all of the districts have yet been heard from but the reports which have been received indicate fully as many successful pupils as last year and in some instances more. Franklin township has the remarkable distinction of having eighteen pupils take the first test and all of them pass it with the required average of 98 per cent or above. One hundred words were given in this test from the list specially prepared by Prof. Roth and the examination was not an easy one.

From the present indications there will be anywhere from 125 to 175 pupils in the big spelling match in the Court House on April first. Each year the contest becomes more keen. Some of those who figured prominently in the earlier years have now been graduated and will not appear this spring while others are still striving to gain the enviable distinction of being the county's best speller, or of sharing in one of the prizes.

Some parents will, as in other years, accompany their children here. Other girls and boys will come alone and in various ways. It will be recalled that last year one of the most successful ones rode all the way from Abbotstown on a bicycle and went home again the same day and in the same way.

TWO NEW AVENUES

To Build Important Connecting Link on Emmitsburg Road.

Congressman Beales has introduced a bill providing for an appropriation of $15,000, or as much thereof as may be necessary to build two roads on the battlefield. The bill covers two-thirds of a mile on both the Emmitsburg and Taneytown roads. The section of the Emmitsburg road to be improved extends from Birney avenue, immediately south of the Peach Orchard, to the intersection of the road with West Confederate avenue. It has long been in bad condition. The Taneytown road will be rebuilt between Granite school house and Wheatfield road.

The bill, it is believed, will be passed at the present session of Congress.

LOCATES RELATIVES

Through the efforts of Burgess Eicholtz, at least one of the relatives of Charles Weikert, who died some weeks ago in Little Rock, Arkansas, has been located. She is a sister, Mrs. David R. Schriver, of Philadelphia, who saw the story Mr. Eicholtz gave to the newspapers. Mr. Weikert was a son of the man who conducted the store at Greenmount before it was sold to Paxton Bigham, and he accompanied his father West after the close of the Civil War. The friends of Charles Weikert, in Little Rock, will be placed in communication with his sister.

HOTEL SOLD

Taneytown Man Buys Good Will and Fixtures from Mrs. Arnold.

Jacob Buffington, of Taneytown, has purchased the Hotel Columbus, McSherrytown, from J. J. Schmidt. He also bought the good will and fixtures from Mrs. William Arnold, who has been conducting the hotel since the death of her husband.

AT MID-WEEK SERVICE

Representatives of Laymen's Movement to Make Address.

Rev. Wm. F. Bare, of York, secretary of the Laymen's Movement of the Lutheran church, will speak at the mid-week prayer service in the College Lutheran church this evening.

WILL MAKE PLANS FOR CONVENTION

Arendtsville the Place for Annual Meeting but Date has not been Set. Will Get Fine Speakers for Sessions.

To make arrangements for the annual county convention and to plan the work for the coming year, the executive committee of the Adams County Sabbath School Association will meet in Gettysburg in an important business session next Friday evening. The executive committee is composed of the county officers and the district presidents.

At the last convention of the association Arendtsville was selected as the place for holding this year's meeting, but no date was set. It is customary, however, to have the annual session in August and this will in all probability, be the time this year. It is hoped to secure an especially strong corps of speakers for the convention and the program will be one of the matters to receive particular attention at the hands of the committee on Friday night.

Included in the work for the next year will be the campaign to establish more Advanced Standard Sunday schools in the county. The last year saw twenty five such schools which had met the requirements to be so recognized by the State Association. This rating is even higher than the Front Line School and it is greatly to the credit of this county, and the men and women directing the affairs of its Sunday School Association, that such a proportion has been advanced to this standard of efficiency.

Another matter to come before Friday's meeting will be the arrangements for Adams County's delegation to the State Sunday School convention in York next October. This county is entitled to no less than fifty accredited delegates and it is expected that not only they, but many others, will avail themselves of the opportunity to attend the meetings, which will be held in the tabernacle formerly used in the Biedervolf evangelistic campaign.

The meeting of the executive committee Friday evening will be held at the Pitzer House.

School that Instructs Many from this County Closes for Recess.

The Cumberland Valley State Normal School at Shippensburg closed today for the spring vacation of ten days. During the time the school is closed, extensive alterations will be made. Over 150 new pupils have enrolled for the spring term, and the dormitory capacities are so taxed that it has been decided to have a part of the gymnasium made into sleeping quarters temporarily. Four new teachers will be secured. The stockholders of the institution are considering a proposition to sell the place to the State.

TO RETURN ALL BORROWED GOODS

Grand Annual Exchange will Occur at Gettysburg College Next Week. Two More Free Lectures. Other College News.

"Take It Back Day" is to be observed at Gettysburg College on Saturday, April first, according to an edict of the student council, and every collegian must on that day return all articles that he has borrowed during the past year that still remain in his possession. Last year was the first that the day was established, and suits, shirts, books, pens, pencils, magazines, neckties, and many other things, large and small, were returned to their original owners, some of them after an absence of many months.

Two more free lectures are announced for college during the present semester. The first will be on April 7, when President Granville will deliver his illustrated lecture on "Gettysburg, the College and the Battle"; and the second on April 13, when Dr. Edward A. Ross, of the University of Wisconsin, will give the Stuckenbergl lecture. His subject will be "Ethics of Business and the Professions."

The final number of this year's entertainment course at college, conducted by a committee from the Young Men's Christian Association will be held on Friday evening when Miss M. Beryl Buckley will read "The Shepherd of the Hills." Saturday evening the Hood College Glee Club, from Frederick will give a concert in the chapel and it is planned to have them entertained afterward. They gave a dance for the Gettysburg clubs at the time of their visit to Frederick several weeks ago.

The base ball team leaves on Friday for Princeton, New Jersey, where they will play their opening game of the season. Princeton also opened the 1915 schedule. Ira Plank has had the boys under instruction for many weeks but there has been little opportunity for out-door practice. They have the consolation, however, that their opponents will have had just as little chance to get into shape.

The inter-fraternity committee has announced that the spring dance will be held in Glatfelter Hall on the evening of Friday, April 14. As this is the last dance this organization can give until the Pan-Hellenic in June, efforts are being made to have it quite largely attended and a successful affair.

The college faculty with their wives will be among the guests at the complimentary dinner to be given Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Singmaster by Mr. and Mrs. William Grecht at the Hotel Gettysburg on Thursday evening. The guests will include the two faculties, representatives of the town newspapers, and a few other invited guests.

Preparations are being made to increase the popularity of tennis at college this spring. For several years it has been growing steadily as one of the most popular sports and it is now proposed to lay out some extra courts. The plans for the beautification of the Prep Campus include the building of a number of new courts there.

HEAR OF GREAT LINEN SHORTAGE

Business Men See Time Coming when Cotton will be the Popular Material for Wearing Apparel. War the Cause.

Gettysburg dry goods merchants now hear of an impending linen famine. It is caused by the war, and if conditions reach a point predicted by dealers in the big cities, it will practically bring about a "cotton age" in this country. It is said that the war has worked such havoc with the linen industry that imports now amount to a "mere nothing." Before the conflict the imports ran into the millions.

France, Belgium, Ireland, Germany, Russia and Austria have heretofore supplied the United States with linen, but these countries are so busy fighting that the production of flax has dwindled almost to a standstill. Only Ireland of all the countries mentioned, is at present in a position to continue the supply. Even in times of peace Ireland could not supply the demand of America. With the present handicap of the scarcity of flax, lack of means to spin the yarns and lack of men to do the weaving Ireland could not, it is said, turn out one-fourth the linen she produced in times of peace.

It is predicted that it will be two or three years after the close of the war before the linen industry regains its normal standing. During this period makers of fabrics must fall back upon cotton. Flax which constitutes the raw material is grown principally in Russia and directly in the path of the war. It is said that no flax has been sown during the last year, while the supplies on hand previously, were used for war purposes. Belgium and Ireland grew a small percentage of flax, but this was entirely consumed by home use. Most of the world's yarns were spun in Belgium, but now the industry there has been completely halted.

Heretofore Germany and Austria has exported a great deal of linens but the tight blockade has placed exports out of the question, even if any could be spared from home.

MORE WORK

Western Maryland to Extend Double-Track from Pen Mar.

It is now learned on good authority that as soon as the excavating and grading is finished for the double-tracking of the Western Maryland main line between Blue Mountain House and Edgemont, work will immediately begin on a similar operation for the section of the road between Pen Mar and Blue Mountain House. The long siding at Pen Mar now runs as far as the big cut below the Pen Mar observatory, and not much additional track will have to be put down in the doubling process.

NOT A CANDIDATE

Senator Hoke not out for Re-Election is the Intimation.

Chambersburg "Valley Spirit": State Senator John W. Hoke was going around Memorial Circle with an armful of legal papers when he was accosted by a Spirit man with this interrogation: "Senator, will you be a candidate again for the senate?" "I will answer that with a word that has two letters. Can you guess it?" said the Senator as he hurried on. From this it may be learned that Mr. Hoke will not enter the senatorial contest this year.

MRS. HAPPEL DIED TUESDAY MORNING

Had Large Acquaintanceship in Western Portion of the County. Leaves Eight Children. Funeral of Colonel Stewart.

Mrs. Martha E. Happel, a native of Germany and well known by residents of the western portion of Adams County, died Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock, at her home, at Blue Ridge Summit, aged 78 years. She had been confined to her bed for the past eight weeks. Mrs. Happel was born in the village of Oberdunzelsbach, near Eschwege, Hesse Cassel, Germany.

At the age of 15 years she came to this country with her parents and settled in Hagerstown. A few years later she married George Happel and moved to the vicinity of Welty's mills, where they farmed for a number of years. Her husband died 16 years ago. One year following his death she moved to Blue Ridge Summit, where she had lived ever since.

She leaves eight sons as follows: Harry Happel, Baltimore; Fred Happel, Florida; Frank Happel, Philadelphia; Lewis A. Happel, Wayne Heights, and George, William, John and Albert Happel, all of Blue Ridge Summit. She also leaves two sisters: Amelia, Hagerstown, and Elizabeth, Washington.

SIMPLE FUNERAL

Funeral services over the remains of Colonel W. Warren Stewart were held at his late home in Chambersburg Tuesday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. L. Ridge, of the Falling Spring Presbyterian church. The services were marked for their simplicity and reverence. Many employees of the Cumberland Valley railroad were in attendance as well as a number of other railroad men.

Colonel Stewart's remains were taken to York Springs this morning, where interment was made.

BEST BUCKWHEAT STATE

Seventy Per Cent of All that Grown in the County Produced here.

Pennsylvania leads in the buckwheat yield this year, not an unusual agricultural result. Fulton county habitually holds first place as to quality and quantity, where it has stood for half a century. The State Agricultural Department reports that more than seventy per cent of all the buckwheat raised in this country is grown in Pennsylvania. New York is second.

One Path Valley, Franklin county, miller alone ground nearly 2,000 bushels of this grain into meal as this season's product. Not all of this was grown in Path Valley, part of it coming from Perry and Juniata, adjoining counties. This miller told that while Path Valley raised more buckwheat this year than ever before the product wasn't uniformly of high grade, much of it through absorption or otherwise gathering and holding moisture, making the cakes on the griddle sticky and difficult to turn.

GERMANS USE FLAMING LIQUIDS

Fire Spouting Devices Supplement Rain of Shells.

TEUTONS STORM POSITIONS

Paris Admits Enemy Gains, But Claims Advance is Checked—Berlin Claims 2500 Prisoners.

London, March 22.—The Germans before Verdun are making a strong drive at the French left flank, west of the Meuse, well toward the border of the neighboring Argonne region, and have gained ground south of Malancourt, some ten miles northwest of Verdun.

Their first attacks took them into Malancourt wood and the official statement from Paris shows that they have pushed some distance further southward, occupying the Avancourt wood, the southern section of the Malancourt wooded district.

The attacks have been made with important forces, with the support of a heavy bombardment by shells of large calibre and the throwing of liquid fire by detachments carrying special devices for the purpose.

The Germans attempted a further advance southward, but, according to Paris, their attempts to debouch from the Avancourt wood were failures.

The Berlin announcement on the drive reports the storming of all the French fortified positions in and near the Avancourt woods. The ground was won by Bavarian regiments and Württemberg landwehr. In making their substantial gains the Germans, it is stated, took more than 2500 prisoners and quantities of war material, while the French added material to their casualties in fruitless counter attacks.

The French official statement telling of the battle, says:

"In Belgium a reconnaissance on the part of the enemy which took place along our lines to the north of Pont Boesinghe was at once driven back by a counter attack."

"In the Argonne district our artillery has been very active along the front of the Cheppy wood."

West of the river Meuse the Germans several times renewed their attacks against our front, extending from Avancourt to Malancourt, where the bombardment by shells of large calibre continued without interruption. The attacks of the enemy here were accompanied by the throwing of flaming liquid by detachments of men carrying special machines for this purpose.

"In spite of the heavy losses inflicted by our fire, the enemy was able to take possession, after hand-to-hand fighting, of the southeastern part of Malancourt wood, known as the Avancourt wood, which was occupied. All the efforts of the Germans to march out from the Avancourt wood resulted in failure."

"Western theatre: West of the Meuse, Bavarian regiments and battalions of Württemberg landwehr, after careful preparations, stormed the entire strongly fortified French positions in and near the forest northeast of Avancourt. In addition to considerable sanguinary losses, the enemy has so far incurred losses amounting to thirty-two officers, including two in command of regiments, and more than 2500 men in unwounded prisoners and much war material, the amount of which has not yet been ascertained."

"Counter attacks attempted by the enemy did not bring him any advantage, but on the contrary, inflicted further serious losses upon him. East of the Meuse the situation is unchanged."

There is no attempt to belittle the danger of the flanking move for the French. In case it can be pushed home the Germans will gain much more than they could have by direct assault on Le Mort Homme. If they are able to wrest the Montfaucon wood and the village of Avancourt from the French, the latter, it is believed, would be forced to withdraw from both Le Mort Homme (The Dead Man) and the Cote Voie (Goose Hill).

Washington, March 22.—The department of justice was advised that Ignatius T. T. The advice to the department said the Tombs authorities have doubled the guard around his cell.

RUSSIANS GET TOWN IN 6 MONTHS' FIGHT

Drive Austrians From Position on Bukovina Border.

London, March 22.—After a defense of six months by Austrian troops, Usciecko, on the Danister river, north of Czernowitz, has been captured by the Russians, it was admitted by the Austrian war office in its statement sent from Vienna.

The Russians have also gained a crossing of the Danister at that point. The attack on Usciecko was part of the general drive of the Russians on the southern end of the battle front by which they hoped to open up a path through Bukovina.

The Austrian forces, operating northwest of Usciecko, which is near the Bukovina border, were forced by the pressure of the Russians to evacuate the bridgehead fortifications and to abandon their transports. Under cover of night they succeeded in reaching the Austrian advance position north of Czernowitz, according to the Austrian official statement.

The official statement pays a tribute of admiration to the bravery of the Austrian troops, who gave way only on account of the superior strength of Russian attacking forces. It adds that the only means left to the Austrians to avoid capture was to break through the Russian positions at Usciecko and thus they did.

MAYOR HELPS OFFENDER

Loans Him Cent to Pay Fine for Violating Sunday Laws.

Collingswood, N. J., March 22.—A cent played an important part in the trial of Charles M. Sutton, a prominent merchant, charged with violating the Sunday "Blue Law" closing ordinance.

Sutton had been found guilty and ordered to pay a fine of $5 or serve ten days in jail for selling tobacco on Sunday. He dug down in his pockets to pay the fine, and all he could find was four dollars in bills and ninety-nine cents in change.

That the law was not allowed to take its course was due to the generosity of Mayor Thomas W. Jack, sitting in the case as committing magistrate. Mayor Jack, when he saw Sutton's predicament, immediately produced the cent required and made the offender the necessary loan.

VILLA TURNS ON HIS PURSUERS

Beaten at Namiquipa, Doubles North, Fights Carranzistas.

AMERICANS TO CLOSE TRAP

If Mexican Bandit Escapes Big Net He May Seek Safety in Mountain Passes.

El Paso, March 22.—Francisco Villa and his band of outlawed guerrillas, defeated by Carranza forces at Namiquipa, Chihuahua, Northern Mexico, did, it is said, from the forces of Colonel Cano, commanding the 10 facto troops, leaving dead and wounded behind him.

American army reports said Villa again was fighting the Carranzistas at Las Cruces, southeast of General Pershing's base at Casas Grandes. He had been beaten once at Las Cruces before his reverse at Namiquipa; and after the engagement at Namiquipa probably turned north to Las Cruces again to escape from the trap American and Carranza troops are setting for him.

United States army aviators were reported searching the almost blind trails leading to the passes in the Sierra Madre range, by which Villa, who knows them as a city man knows his own pavement, may seek to double and escape.

Brigadier General John J. Pershing, commanding the United States punitive expedition, from his base at Casas Grandes, has sent another column of American troops, the fourth of a "fan" stretched south, to aid in corralling the bandit chief.

The report that American troops have been despatched to Las Cruces to aid in fighting Villa and his band, thus forced into another battle with the Carranza troops near that point, came by wireless to the United States army station at Columbus, N. M. The Americans are evidently trying to close the north side of the trap, which the Carranza men otherwise have shut.

Army officers agree that if Villa gets through that trap, breaks up his command into small bands and turns to the Sierra Madre mountains as a hiding place, it will be almost impossible to capture him. Villa spent his early days as an outlaw in these mountains, the passes through which an army and its transport may not move. It takes ten to twelve days to tread these tortuous passes into the Sonora district.

Mexicans believed Villa would hide himself away in the mountain fastnesses until the American troops have given up the chase, if he can reach those retreats.

In asking the war department for additional troops to be used in the campaign against Villa, Funston did not give the number, but explained he wanted an adequate force to protect the line of communication, already more than 100 miles long.

The request for more troops came simply because General Pershing has found it necessary to stretch his line of communications so thin that, unless reinforced soon, operations must be restricted to a limited area.

The detachments of cavalry sent in different directions south of Casas Grandes has made advisable the stationing of troops along those lines to support the mobile forces sweeping the trails to Babicora, Namiquipa and Carmen. When Babicora is reached the advanced troops of the expeditionary forces will be almost 200 miles from the border.

The telegraph wires were cut somewhere north of Casas Grandes and Carranza officials were without details of the Namiquipa battle in which Colonel Cano defeated Villa. A roving band of outlaws that scattered from the main Villa command on its flight south after the massacre of Columbus, are believed to have cut the wires.

Communication may not be restored for some time and information of Villa's movements will have to come by wireless to the United States army base at Columbus to be transmitted to Major General Funston at San Antonio.

BRYAN OUT FOR WILSON

He said there would be no other candidate at the St. Louis convention. "I am a candidate for delegate-at-large to that convention," said Mr. Bryan, "but if any of my friends who suddenly have become friends of Woodrow Wilson can serve him better than myself, let them send some one else to the convention."

GEN. SIR SAM HUGHES

The French front is the scene of much activity by the Canadian artillery forces, according to a communication received in Ottawa from General Sir Sam Hughes from the Canadian headquarters in France. The report says that the Seventh artillery brigade destroyed an enemy machine gun emplacement and that a trench mortar battery succeeded in breaching a German parapet in several places.

TWO U. S. AVIATORS LOST IN MEXICO

Machines Missing on Trip From the Border.

Columbus, N. M., March 22.—Two aeroplanes of the First Aero Squadron have been lost in flight between here and Casas Grandes, General Pershing's base headquarters in Mexico.

Captain B. D. Foulis, in command of the squadron, reported by wireless their failure to arrive, and said their whereabouts was not known. Six machines arrived safely. High winds have made army airmen's tasks hazardous.

A wireless despatch from General Pershing's column said that Lieutenant W. G. Kilner had not arrived, but made no mention of a second aviator who was missing.

Serious apprehension is not yet entertained regarding the absence of the missing men, as they were to have followed the route taken by the expedition all the way to Casas Grandes, and if they had to come to earth, it is regarded as a certainty that they would be picked up in a short time unless they met with serious accident and fell some distance from the trail.

The airmen who arrived safely were Lieutenants S. C. G. Chapman, J. E. Carberry, H. A. Dorgue, T. S. Bowen, R. H. Willis and E. S. Gonell.

With the American army in Mexico, by wireless to Columbus, N. M., March 22.—One of the six aeroplanes which joined the expeditionary force from Columbus was partly wrecked in a fall.

Lieutenant T. S. Bowen, the pilot, received a broken nose and other slight injuries. He was attempting to rise in a high wind, which showed a tendency to whirl. Finally, he went up, but when fifty feet in the air, his aeroplane took a dip and plunged at most straight to the ground.

4,000,000 RIFLES ORDERED

Philadelphia Steel Company Will Enlarge Plant to Make Arms.

Philadelphia, March 22.—A contract just closed with the Russian government for 4,000,000 rifle barrels, has forced the John H. H. Steel company, Frankford, to enlarge its plant, so that the contract may be filled within the required time.

To this end the company has had plans prepared by C. E. Schermerhorn, architect, of this city, who invited estimates for a one-story, one-span building, 60 by 160 feet, which will be rushed to completion as a rifle barrel manufacturing department.

Russians Enter Ispahan.

London, March 22.—A Reuter despatch from Teheran says that Russian forces entered Ispahan, the old capital of Persia, on March 19 (Sunday). CONCENTRATION CAMP

York Fair Ground May be Used for State's Recruits.

Anticipating passage of the administration bill for increase of the regular army, negotiations are in progress with the York County Agricultural Society for use of its 73-acre fair ground as a concentration camp for a Pennsylvania quota of about 1,500 men. This leaked out following a conference between the fair officials and representatives of the War Department and the adjutant general's office at Harrisburg.

While the Yorkers taken into confidence were cautioned to observe secrecy, it is reported that the scheme contemplates immediate concentration and training of the Pennsylvania recruits at York after the army increase is authorized. It is proposed to house the soldiers in the permanent buildings on the fair grounds as a better protection to health than tents would afford and to provide a hospital and other accessories in order that the camp may be maintained for an indefinite length of time, possibly all summer, it is said.

When the above dispatch was read to Adjutant General Stewart he said: "There has been no consultation with War Department representatives and fair officials, and I can't understand how such a story could originate. However, it probably originated from the fact that Lieutenant Colonel Finney, of Harrisburg, was sent down to York to look over the fair grounds to see whether it would be a good place to locate a camp for the Eighth regiment in case the Guard was called out."

Good Remedy.

Borax is the most efficacious remedy we know for the removal of ants and roaches. Do not moisten it, but mix it in powdered form with gum camphor if you can stand the odor of the latter; if not, use the borax alone and sprinkle the mixture thickly over the closet shelves and into all the cracks which seem infested. It will take several applications.

Trouble in the Sanctum.

There's always a sticky-fingered individual who somehow always finds his way into a newspaper office. His peculiarity is that he takes things that can be of no earthly use to him. Just now he has gone away with all the exchanges, including the paragraphic material.—Nashville Tennessean.

Cat's Blue Eyes Shine Red in Dark.

As showing how widely the permanently blue eyes of cats differ from other eyes, it is noted that immediately the eyes of white cats that are to have permanently blue eyes open they shine bright red in the dark, and neither the ephemeral kitten blue nor any other colored eyes do this.

Graded Unhappiness.

Tears are the showers that fertilize this world; and memory of things precious keepeth warm the heart that once did hold them. They are poor that have lost nothing; they are poorer far who, losing, have forgotten; they most poor of all, who lose and wish they might forget.—Ingelew.

SPEEDING UP ON MILITARY BILLS

But Much Time Is Lost by Congress on Other Measures.

NOTHING BUT TALK.

Debates Various Subjects Which Have Absolutely No Chance of Becoming Law—One Instance Is the Immigration Bill, Which Has Already Been Voted Twice.

By ARTHUR W. DUNN.
Washington, March 22.—[Special.]—Legislative delay continues in spite of the warning which different men have given. Much time is devoted to discussions which might be relegated to a debating society for all the good they do. Many hours are given to talk upon bills where there is a foregone conclusion that they will either be changed or defeated. But members insist upon expressing their opinions, and thus the time is consumed without any results.

The senate discussed up and down, round and about, in and out and in every possible way the whole subject of water power sites and the relations of the government and the states to the various correlated questions. Yet it goes blithely on with another bill which will cause the same ground to be covered, although it is almost certain that neither bill can become a law.

House Goes Forward.
The house decided to take one advanced step and consider the military bill before it took up the immigration bill, but that was because the emergency in Mexico caused a speeding up. Otherwise the house would have devoted a great deal of time to a bill which has been vetoed by two presidents and would be vetoed by President Wilson a second time. It is almost certain that the immigration bill will not become a law at this time. President Wilson, in addition to the reasons he had before, will add the further reason that while the war is going on in Europe it is not the best time to pass an immigration measure.

Subject of More Talk.
As if the senate did not have enough to talk about now Senator Hoke Smith has proposed an amendment to the rules providing for limited debate or a system of cutting off debate when a majority of the senators decide they would like to stop the talking. As a measure of prolonging debate there is scarcely a subject that could be presented that is as full of possibilities as a resolution to close debate. Just now there are too many bills pending which certain senators desire to kill to permit much headway in the direction of debate.

He Works Too Hard.
Here is another overworked senator. "I arrive at my office every morning at 7 o'clock," Senator Myers of Montana told the senate, "and seldom retire before midnight; every minute of those hours, except the necessary time for meals, being devoted to public business."

And the Montana senator has a campaign for re-election coming on and would, no doubt, like to devote any spare time to keeping his political fences in repair.

Austin's Varied Experience.
Congressman Austin of Tennessee in opposing the Borland amendment to increase the working hours of clerks in the government service told the house of his varied experience as a government employee. "Twenty-eight years ago," he said, "I came to Washington as the secretary of the congressman in the district I now represent. I was afterward an assistant doorkeeper, clerk in the postoffice department, an agent of the treasury department, clerk in the war department and connected with the department of justice and was consul general in Scotland before my election as a member of congress."

Borland and Brain Fag.
Jim Mann went after Congressman Borland, who was trying to make extra hours for the government clerks. "Brain fag" was the burden of Mann's theme. He pointed out defects in the amendment, mistakes by Borland and other shortcomings, each of which he attributed to brain fag on the part of the Missouri member. Mann said Borland was working too many hours and advised him to restrict himself to seven solid work hours.

Admonished by Mann.
When Victor Berger was the only socialist member of the house Minority Leader Mann took especial care of him and saw that he got time for debate. Now he looks after Congressman Mann London in the same way, although he has found it necessary to admonish the socialist at times. When ever there is an effort to arrange time for debate in the house London bobs up and tries to get time from both sides. He did that one day, and Mann said:

"You must not try to hold up each side of the house each time we have debate. We have treated you fairly."

"I know you have," replied London. "But I want five minutes from the republican side and five from the democratic side."

"You should make these arrangements privately," admonished Mann.

Wanting Too Much.
When you get to feeling so very sorry for yourself you are very apt to find that no one else is very sorry for you.—Selected.

OYSTERS FRIED IN BUTTER.—Make a batter of three eggs, three tablespoonfuls of milk and one of flour and juice of oysters. Put butter into chafing dish and when it is hot drop oysters one at a time into the batter, then into the hot butter and fry them until a rich brown.

Stuffed Heart.—Materials: One heart, half a cupful of soft crumbs, a table-spoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, a small onion, half a teaspoonful of powdered thyme, a thick slice of bacon, flour.

Directions: Wash the heart, remove the veins and squeeze out any blood clots that may be in it. Fry the bacon and remove the crisp slice and cut it in small pieces. Make a stuffing of the butter (melted), the bread, chopped onion and seasoning and add the bacon pieces. Stuff the heart and tie it in four. Dredge it with salt, pepper and flour and brown it on all sides in the bacon fat. Put it into the larger saucepan or into the fireless cooker utensil, half cover it with water, let it boil five minutes, then let simmer four or five hours till tender, or put it into the fireless cooker for ten hours or more. Reheat and put again into the fireless until tender. This is as much of the liquor as desired with two tablespoonfuls of flour mixed to a paste with two tablespoonfuls of water for each cupful of liquor. Slice the heart and serve with gravy over it.

Braised Tongue.—Skin a fresh beef tongue that has been boiled for two hours. Put it in a casserole and pour over it the following gravy: Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and brown in it three tablespoonfuls of flour. Add a pint of strained canned tomato juice and a pint of the liquid in which the tongue was cooked. Cook until smooth and add half an onion and half a carrot cut in small pieces. Cover the casserole and simmer for two hours.

Eggs a la Quebec.—Cut an onion into fine dice, fry lightly in a tablespoonful of butter, then dash in a teaspoonful of vinegar. Butter a shallow dish and strew the onion in it. Break five eggs into it, being careful not to break the yolks. Bake in a hot oven until the whites are set. Dust on salt and white pepper and sprinkle with coarse bread-crumbs fried brown in butter. Garnish with parsley and serve in sauce dish. Good served with baked potatoes.

A GREAT PREHISTORIC SEA.

It Reached From the Gulf of Mexico Far Up Into New York.

A prehistoric sea or arm of the ocean which extended from the gulf of Mexico far up into New York state is described by the United States geological survey in reporting to a correspondent on a rock sample.

"The rock was formed very long ago, many millions of years ago, in what geologists call the Devonian period. At that time a large part of the eastern United States was occupied by an arm of the sea which extended north-eastward from the gulf of Mexico east into New York state. The eastern shore of the sea was not far east of the present line of the Blue Ridge and the Highlands of New Jersey and southeastern New York, and still farther east lay a great continent which extended an unknown distance into the area now occupied by the north Atlantic. The northern shore of the sea was somewhere near a line drawn from Albany through Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo. The present site of the Catskills was thus near the northeast end or head of this sea or gulf, with land not far away on the east and north.

"The sea teemed with life, almost wholly invertebrate animals, and marine plants, and the larger part of the life appears to have inhabited the sea bottom. Brachiopods, though rare now, were very abundant then, and many other forms of animals crawled about or grew upon the sea floor. As the streams washed in sand and mud from the neighboring lands the sea gradually filled up, and the shells of many brachiopods and other shell-bearing animals were thus buried in the sand and their forms preserved till now. By slow upward movement of the earth's crust the sea was drained from the region, and the beds of sand and mud that had been hardened into sandstone and shale were lifted thousands of feet above sea level to form a great new land. The Catskill mountains have since been carved from this uplifted mass of rock through the cutting of valleys by the streams."

Good Enough For a Servian

By ETHEL HOLMES

When the British troops were making their way from Saloniki, Greece, to assist the Servians in repelling the Bulgarians the commander of the English advance was desirous of communicating with the Servians nearest to him in order to arrange for a junction between the two forces. Entering a peasant's hut, he found a Greek family, the oldest daughter being a pretty girl of sixteen.

"Would you like to earn these?" the general asked of the girl, showing her a handful of gold pieces.

Her eyes sparkled, and she admitted that she would.

"Well, then, take a basket of eggs and go northward, ostensibly to sell them to such soldiers as you meet. One of the eggs will contain a message. Give it to the first Servian officer you meet."

"Suppose," asked the girl's mother, "this egg containing the message falls into the hands of a Bulgarian?"

"In that case," replied the general, "it would go very hard with your daughter. But," he added, "if she manages well I think she will get it through without any difficulty."

The woman looked at the gold, then at her daughter. The latter looked at the gold and told the general that she would undertake the mission. The general called for a basket of eggs and taking one, clipped a small hole in the shell, let out the contents, rolled a bit of tissue paper on which the message had been written into a wisp the size of a match, put it through the hole in the shell, filled the remaining space with sand, then sealed the hole with a bit of white plaster.

The girl was expected to go some distance; therefore a horse and cart on the place were requisitioned to take her. As she drove away the general bid her godspeed, and if she got the message through and returned safely she should have a hundred gold pieces. Possibly she might be entrusted with a return message, but it had been arranged by the one in the egg that it should be oral.

Maria, the girl, drove along a road leading northward till she came to a picket guard of Bulgarians stationed to prevent any communication between the French and English and the Servians. Maria showed them her eggs, and when they seemed disposed to turn her back she gave each of the men a couple of them. They were very hungry; therefore the bribe was sufficient.

She next came to quite a large force of Bulgarians, and the officer in charge refused to let her pass. She made up a sad story about her mother being ill and she had gone out to get some eggs for her to eat. The officer referred the matter to his commander, who moved by Maria's story, ordered that a woman be employed to search her and if nothing was found on her to let her go on. The search was thorough, the cart being also carefully looked over. Of course nothing was found. Then Maria gave away all the eggs she did not need for her mother and went on, having been given a pass which would enable her to go as far as she liked.

She soon met with a party of Bulgarians engaged in placing obstructions on the road. They stopped her, but when she showed her pass they were willing to let her go on. But, being short of rations, they confiscated her eggs. This frightened her.

"Some of them are not fresh," she said. "I don't think you will care to eat such."

With that the officer in command took up the eggs one after the other and held them to the sunlight to look through them. When he came to the egg with the message, before raising it to the light he held it in his hand a moment to judge its weight.

"This one is bad, I know," he said. "It doesn't weigh the same as the others."

Maria's heart stood still.

The officer held the egg up to the sun, and, since no light passed through it, he put it in the basket, saying:

"My dear, if you meet with a Servian you are quite welcome to give him that egg. It is not good enough for a Bulgarian, but it is too good for a Servian."

A way was made through the obstructions for Maria's cart, and she drove away amid the laughter of the men at their officer's joke.

That was the last stop Maria made. The next men she met were some Servian cavalry. She gave the egg to their commander, telling him that it contained a message. He escorted her to his general, who took the paper from the eggshell and read it with intense interest. It named the location and the date at which the British and the Servians would form a junction, and, since this suited the Servians, Maria had only to carry back an oral message stating the fact.

Strange to say, she had more difficulty in getting back than in going out. She was once detained overnight and twice was searched. When she finally reached the British outposts she was taken to the general, who gave her a kiss and the hundred gold pieces promised her.

The exploit was very much to the credit of the messenger, but it availed nothing in the end, for not long afterward the allies retreated to Saloniki. Nevertheless though what the girl did was of no avail in the end she was very proud of it.

MIMICKED HIS BOSS.

When Nat Goodwin First Gave an Imitation of Stuart Robson.

Nat Goodwin had just finished his monologue at the Palace one night when William Barkus, a veteran actor and lifelong friend of the comedian, said:

"Nat, I remember the first night you went on the stage at the Howard Atheneum and played Ned the Newsboy in Stuart Robson's production of 'Law In New York.' You gave imitations then, and I never heard better ones before or since."

"Well," replied Goodwin modestly, "they told me that my stunt went remarkably well that night. If you remember, after I had responded to several encores some of them in the gallery shouted, 'Imitate Stuart Robson.' I was afraid to imitate my manager so I shook my head. Still they shouted, 'Robson, Robson.' He was standing in the wings, and as I came off I said, 'What can I do, Mr. Robson? They are clamoring for me to give an imitation of you.' 'Do,' said he in that falsetto voice so well known to theatergoers of that period. 'Go back and give the villains —'"

"On the impulse of the moment I went through an entire scene which the audience had just witnessed between Robson and a favorite player named Henry Bloodgood. As I assumed each voice, particularly Robson's, the applause was deafening, and at the finish, after repeated calls, Robson was obliged to take me on and make a speech, thanking the audience in my behalf."

"After the play Robson said to me: 'Young Goodwin, you have done two things tonight that I shall never forget—halted the performance and given a very bad imitation of me. I could have done it better myself.'—New York Times.

FOR OVERWORKED WOMEN

This is the season of the year when the wife and mother begins to feel the strain of household and social duties, and gets into a run-down, nervous, weakened condition. To all such our local druggist, C. Wm. Beales Prop. of The People's Drug Store, says, "We have a rare combination of the three oldest tonics known, in Vinol, which we guarantee to restore strength, make you eat better, sleep better and feel better, or we will return your money."

Booth Tarkington's Best Story !

The TURMOIL

AN AMERICAN STORY

Here is a newspaper serial that is one of the biggest and best we have ever had the opportunity of giving our readers.

To read The Turmoil is to know Bibbs, and to know Bibbs is a pleasure you should not deny yourself, for in all the range of fiction his counterpart has never been met; Bibbs stands alone---a unique personality, distinctively human withal, and a young man never to be forgotten.

Bibbs Sheridan is the central figure in the story, the scene of which is laid in a middle West metropolis that prides itself on its bigness. Everything is done on a big scale. It worships the god of Bigness. To be big is to be wonderful---the bigger the more wonderful. One of the city's representative citizens is Jim Sheridan, uncouth, ignorant, and even at times vulgar, but a big manufacturer and extremely wealthy.

OF AMERICAN LIFE

Sheridan has three sons; Bibbs, the youngest, is looked upon as a weakling and has this fact impressed upon him by his father. He is frail, imaginative, of a poetic temperament, a dreamer of dreams, with no desire for the rush and bustle of business. After the death of the oldest son and misfortune to the other, Sheridan determines to break Bibbs to the shop and the business.

Of course there is a girl in the story. How the plans of the old man work out and how Bibbs enters in to the scheme of things, provides a story most delightful, and a more tender, well-thought, delicate romance has not been written in many a day.

FOR AMERICAN READERS

Dishonesty No Longer Clever

"You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time," said P. T. Barnum.

That used to be considered a very clever idea, and years ago it may have been well founded.

That idea, however, has died an ignominious death.

Advertising is now so much a part of every business that it cannot succeed unless it performs the legitimate function of imparting truthful and honest information.

A careful study of the advertising in The Times shows what the real purpose of advertising is.

It is interesting news. It is timely information. It renders a service to The Times' readers. The circus idea of Barnum's day is dead. The idea of service has taken its place.

The Times has secured the right to print this great American novel and the First Installment will be in MONDAY'S Paper.

Druggists Here Have Something New for Colds

Applied Externally, the Body Heat Releases Soothing Antiseptic Medicated Vapors.

COLDS GO OVERNIGHT, CROUP IN 15 MINUTES.

Local Druggists are Selling it on 30 Days' Trial. Your Money Back if it is Not Better Than Internal Medicines.

Since its introduction here a short time ago, the new treatment for colds, known as Vick's "Vap-O-Rub" Salve, has aroused a great deal of interest among local people, especially among mothers with small children.

Local druggists report that numbers have taken advantage of their 30-day trial offer to see if "Vap-O-Rub" really will relieve these troubles quicker than internal medicine. For croup, coughs, head colds, sore throat or bronchitis, apply "Vap-O-Rub" over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the covering loose around the neck so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled. In addition, "Vap-O-Rub" is absorbed through the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness. For head colds, catarrh, hay fever or esthmalic troubles, "Vap-O-Rub" can be either applied up the nostrils, or a little melted in a spoon, and the vapors inhaled. You have to try this treatment to realize its remarkable effect in all cases of cold troubles.

WHY not give your lad the same training?

"When I was a growing lad, and came upon many words in my reading that I did not understand, my mother, instead of giving me the definition when I applied to her, uniformly sent me to the dictionary to learn it, and in this way I gradually learned many things besides the meaning of the individual word in question—among other things, how to use a dictionary, and the great pleasure and advantage there might be in the use of the dictionary. Afterwards, when I went to the village school, my chief diversion, after lessons were learned and before they were recited, was in turning over the pages of the 'Unabridged' of those days. Now the most modern 'Unabridged'—the NEW INTERNATIONAL—gives me a pleasure of the same sort. So far as my knowledge extends, it is at present the best of the one-volume dictionaries, and quite sufficient for all ordinary uses. Even those who possess the splendid dictionary in several volumes will yet find it a great convenience to have this, which is so compact, so full, and so trustworthy as to leave, in most cases, little to be desired."—Albert Cook, Ph.D., LL.D., Professor of the English Language and Literature, Yale Univ., April 28, 1911.

CARLYLE AND HIS WIFE.

A Glimpse of the Ill Assorted Couple and Their Home Life.

It is certain that the Carlyles were an ill assorted couple. She considered from the beginning that to marry him was an act of condescension on her part. The daughter of a country doctor of Haddington had descended from the skies, like Diana to Endymion, to marry the son of a stone-mason. But he loved her and was happy in his lot.

Not so she. Jealous of him as she was—fervently jealous—not as a lover, for there she knew she was safe. But she could not bear to think that if she were famous it was his wife, where as she, knowing herself to be brilliant, would find him to be known as the husband of that wonderful Mrs. Carlyle. It was his success, social and literary, that she resented. It irked her to be in the second place, and she could not forgive it.

There was something else of which the lady was jealous, and that was the agony of concentration which her husband's work meant for him. At moments her "severe indignation" against "that Carlyle," as she would contemptuously call him, passed all bounds.

One day her aunt went to call upon her and found her in one of her tantrums. "What was the matter?" she asked. "Oh, my dear, it's just that Carlyle! Would you believe it, I have had a headache for three days, and he's only just found it out. 'I'm afraid you're not quite well, my dear,' he said, and all the time he has been working, working! I just threw a teacup at his head."—Lord Redesdale's Recollections.

How She Won Sheridan.

Harriet Mellon, the old-time English actress, did not lack astuteness, even at seventeen. Her admirable answer to Sheridan when he asked her to read the part of Lydia Languish in "The Rivals," with a view to proving her fitness for Drury Lane, could not have been bettered by a ripe diplomat.

"I dare not, sir, for my life I would rather read it to all England. Suppose, sir, you did me the honor of reading it to me?"

Delightedly Sheridan acceded, and after reading nearly the whole of the play, enrolled her in the Drury Lane company.

The Latin Language.

Latin was one of the original languages of Europe, and from it sprang the Italian, French, Spanish and Portuguese languages. Many words of our own language are of Latin origin. It ceased to be spoken in Italy about 581 and was first taught in England by one Adelmus in the seventh century. The use of Latin in law deeds in England gave way to the common tongue in the year 1000.

Real Signess.

A Yankee clinched his argument with an Englishman as to the relative size of the Thames and the Mississippi rivers by saying:

"Why, look here, mister, there ain't enough water in the whole of the Thames to make a gargle for the mouth of the Mississippi."—Exchange

Ringing Up the Curtain.

Fashions in plays change as well as the fashions in the time of ringing up the curtain. At the time of the restoration in England the curtain rose at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and Garrick in 1741 rang up his curtain at 4. By 1824 the hour had become 6 and twelve years later 7 o'clock.

(Medical Advertising) YOU CANNOT CURE CHRONIC ECZEMA IN ONE DAY

A deep burn will not heal over night, nor will diseased skin become clean and new after one treatment, no matter what remedy is used. That's common sense. Common sense and Ucanol are Nature's "first-aids". We want you to know that you can easily stop that torturing itch and that Ucanol will do it almost at once. But if you have been troubled for months with eczema don't expect a few short days of even the most careful treatment to cure you.

Say to yourself: "Here is where Ucanol has a fair chance to build up healthy tissue". And then let this wonderful antiseptic ointment get in its soothing healing work. Don't doubt. Just give Ucanol and Nature a chance. That combination will do wonders.

A liberal supply of Ucanol may be had from The People's Drug Store for not more than 50 cents, with a money back guarantee if it does not do all that is claimed for it. Liberal trial sample sent free on request by Tryol Products Co., Inc., Dept. 1x3, Buffalo, N. Y.

MYSTERY OF STEEL.

Our Modern Civilization Is Based on a Freak of Nature.

If it were not for one tiny, erratic break in nature's orderly progression we should never have had the machinery that has brought about modern civilization. For we should not have had steel. It is true we should have had iron, but pure iron is almost useless. It is only when a small quantity of carbon is added to it that it becomes hard enough to take a cutting edge. Then it is called steel.

Why steel hardens is an unsolved problem. The Scientific American reproduces some extracts from an address before the British Institute of Mechanical Engineers, delivered by Professor Arnold, who has for many years been investigating the chemical and mechanical relations between iron, carbon and other metals, and Sir Robert Hadfield's experiments that called attention to this "break" in the order of nature which alone makes steel possible.

Nickel and cobalt are so closely related to iron in their properties and in their position in the periodic classification—atomic weights, specific gravity, fusing point and valence being almost the same—that it might be expected they would behave identically when united with carbon. Not so, however. Sir Robert Hadfield found that when the "steel" made of nickel and cobalt was heated or hammered the carbon came out of the composition and was precipitated as graphite. If iron be heated this way, too, steel could not be cast iron as soon as heated. And it is on the fact that it does not—"a seemingly quite erratic departure on nature's part from her orderly plan"—that modern manufacture is founded.
